Learning curves

The best way to register the fluid thoughts of the mind is through sketching. I sketch to better understand the problems and to suggest solutions. The client provides his ideas and we translate them into design. Listening and understanding the client and then surpass his expectations is the great motivation for creative design. Here we can see a few steps on the process to arrive at the final design.

Top Deck 40M

One design, many faces

Using the main features of the Top Deck line, the fold-down bulwarks, which increases the deck surface and the contact with the water plus a flybridge that extends for the entire length of the boat, on this larger model a sweeping line from bow to stern creates a double headroom on the aft deck. The Owner's Stateroom is placed on the Bridge Deck aft to take advantage of this extra height with verandas and balconies. The conversation area at the fore deck is integrated with the flybridge on a very large outdoor living space.

Design that speaks to the owner
rather than spectators

The upper part of the Flybridge is covered with a hard-top to protect a gourmet galley, al fresco dining and a conversation area. At the front there's a hot tub surrounded by sunbathing cushions. All exterior areas are connected by stairways.

Open your mind...

The Main Salon floor-to-ceiling glass doors slide forward and disappear into a pocket and the bulwarks on Main Deck fold down to extend the deck area. The Owner's Stateroom doors also slide forward and the handrail creates a balcony. The only remaining solid structure are the air intakes on each side. This combination of factors offers unique flexibility and the feeling of a penthouse at the water level.

Inside out

In these views it is possible to appreciate the open feeling of a much larger boat and the total integration between outdoor and indoor living spaces. The lowered bulwarks add a total of 26.6 square meters of deck, precious real estate that was not there before, to be open or closed at the touch of a button. The lap pool on the aft deck, above the garage door, is another convenient feature.

Time to share

It's easy to see why we are excited about this design. The indoor-outdoor boundaries disappear and sharing nature with family and friends is the real accomplishment. This is a perfect example of how design can impact the yachting lifestyle for better. Moreover, down below there's 4 Guest Staterooms and a VIP on Main Deck for a total of 12 Guests and 8 crew.

Room with a view

The Owner's Stateroom is at the center of the boat but to be at the center of the action is optional. Lateral glass doors slide out of view and the aft doors fold against the structure to reveal a private veranda. No stairway goes over this space to assure complete privacy.

Window of opportunity

The hull window wraps the bow and brings light and views to an Observation Room full of amenities. On the port side there's a Bar, on starboard a Gym enclosed in glass and in the very front several sitting areas to enjoy the view, have breakfast, watch a movie or play video games on a TV that folds down from the ceiling. Or do nothing, just enjoying a drink and good conversation while under way or at anchor.

Sky's the limit

The upper part of the windshield slides up like a skylight and the lower part slides down to create a full open Pilot House, the feeling of a Sport Yacht.

Dear friends

We are delighted to offer you some of our best designs in the form of this e-brochure.

Our office stands for excellence and innovation in yacht design. As an architect I believe the only way to fully convey our dedication to each one of our projects is to show a bit of the process behind each creation, either exterior or interior design.

Everything starts with a sketch and takes life in the CAD drawings, 3D models and photo realistic or artistic computer renderings.

Through this series of selected designs we'll show you concepts, yachts under construction and yachts already delivered, interiors and exteriors, from 6 to 600 feet.

Feel free to print the brochure, to share with your friends or to send us your comments.

Enjoy.
